The American Chemical Society is a self-governed individual membership organization of members at all degree levels and in all fields of chemistry. The Society provides a broad range of opportunities for peer interaction and career development, regardless of professional or scientific interests. The programs and activities conducted by ACS today are the products of a tradition of excellence in meeting member needs that dates from the Society’s founding in 1876.

This On-Site Meeting Program is published by the American Chemical Society as a service to its attendees. Information contained herein is subject to change without notice. While every effort is made to ensure accuracy, ACS makes no warranties, expressed or implied, related to the information. Welcome to Washington and the 254th ACS National Meeting

Welcome to Washington, DC, the Nation’s capital and the site of the 254th ACS National Meeting. It is my pleasure to join all of you in this bustling metropolis.

“Chemistry’s Impact on the Global Economy” will be the theme of this meeting. Twenty-nine technical divisions and five committees are programming, including over 1,035 half-day oral sessions and 146 poster sessions. More than 9,370 papers and 2,720 posters will be presented at the meeting. My Presidential symposia will focus on areas of significant importance: advocacy and communications, the chemistry of our planet, and the safe practice of science.

On Sunday afternoon, in conjunction with the Royal Society of Chemistry, Science Communications: The Art of Developing a Clear Message will help members share stories on how to positively and effectively communicate chemistry. It will also include an opportunity for audience members to develop and practice an elevator pitch on their chemical research (Marriott Marquis, Liberty Salon M). All-day on Monday, Building a Safety Culture Across the Chemistry Enterprise will feature top-down approaches in the morning session, followed by grassroots efforts in the afternoon (Marriott Marquis, Marquis Salon 1/2). Understanding the Chemistry of our Planet will be a highlight of symposium all-day Tuesday, showcasing renowned researchers discussing the transforming power of chemistry that is ubiquitous to life on Earth. Scientists will present their innovative research on chemistry’s role in our Earth System and the human impacts to the chemistry of our environment (Washington Convention Center, Room 145A). The nine President Recommended symposia focus on issues of sustainability, highlighting up-and-coming graduate researchers, and celebrating diverse practitioners of chemistry.

On Monday afternoon, Prashant Jain from the University of Illinois – Urbana Champaign will present the Kavli Foundation Emerging Leader in Chemistry Lecture on Turning Photons Into Chemical Bonds. Following his presentation, Joanna Aizenberg of Harvard University will give the Fred Kavli Innovations in Chemistry Lecture on Multifunctionality of liquid-filled nanostructured materials: From encryption to anti-fouling (Washington Convention Center, Ballroom A&B).

Many education-focused programs for high school teachers, undergraduate and graduate students, postdocs, and chemical professionals will be offered. For job seekers and employers, the career fair will provide opportunities for on-site interviews, one-on-one career assistance, and career-related workshops. The exposition will feature more than 250 companies showcasing services, instruments, books, and lab equipment in more than 300 booths.

My personal thanks go to our hosts at the Chemical Society of Washington, and the divisional program chairs and symposium chairs responsible for organizing the technical sessions. I know this will be a tremendously successful meeting, and I thank you all for your contributions.

Welcome Message from Nancy B. Jackson,
Washington Thematic Chair

The Fall 2017 ACS National Meeting will be held August 20–24 in our nation’s capital, Washington, DC. The theme is Chemistry’s Impact on the Global Economy.

Chemists from around the world were invited to showcase the future of chemistry and its impact on the economy. Included subtopics include energy, chemical waste, feeding the world, vaccination, clean water, environment, global collaboration, and preventing the use of chemicals in war.

Sunday, August 20, the plenary session will inaugurate the meeting theme with an invited lecture from Professor Joe DeSimone of Carbon, Inc., the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and North Carolina State University. Prof. DeSimone will discuss an economically competitive advancement in additive manufacturing. There will be a question and comments period immediately following.

On Monday, August 21, the Kavli Foundation Lecture Series will feature the Emerging Leader in Chemistry Lecture by Dr. Prashant K. Jain titled “Turning photons into chemical bonds” and will highlight a bold venture into artificial photosynthesis accomplished through nanostructured catalysts engineered for trapping photons. The Innovations in Chemistry Lecture by Prof. Joanna Aizenberg of Harvard University is titled “Multifunctionality of liquid-filled nanostructured materials: From encryption to anti-fouling” and will highlight two new classes of materials that show the emergence of unprecedented properties and unique behaviors due to the entrapment of a liquid into a structured solid.

The technical program constructed by ACS Technical Divisions includes many symposia that will touch on Chemistry’s Impact on the Global Economy. Divisions and committees with symposia supporting the theme include COLL, CATL, PHYS, ENVR, ENFL, &EC, CHAS, AGFD, SCHB, YCC, AGRO, CINF, PROF, SOCED and YCC. Washington, DC is an important place to have the Chemistry’s Impact on the Global economy. I hope that you can make it to these important talks.

The program for the meeting and other information is available online at www.acs.org/wdc2017.

I am very grateful to the members of the local section, the program chairs of the divisions and committees listed above, the thematic symposia chairs, and the ACS staff for their essential help in making the theme of this meeting cogent and coordinated. I look forward to meeting you in the District of Columbia.

Greetings

American Chemical Society
254th National Meeting

August 20, 2017

As Mayor of Washington, DC, it is my pleasure to extend greetings to the American Chemical Society (ACS), on the occasion of your 254th National Meeting.

The ACS is the leading source of authoritative scientific information and one of the world’s largest scientific societies. Headquartered right here in Washington, the ACS is at the forefront of the evolving worldwide chemical enterprise and the premier professional home for chemists, chemical engineers and related professions around the globe.

This year’s theme focuses on “Chemistry's Impact on the Global Economy.” I applaud the American Chemical Society for your dynamic and visionary commitment to improving the lives of others through the transforming power of chemistry.

On behalf of the residents of Washington, DC, I wish you a productive event.
